

MODEL OF COOPERATION

(Abridged from the original transcript)

We are giving you access to the information that you are seeking for the coming together in union of the peoples of your planet. And we say “peoples” because this is the place of peoples in this continent. Think about it; this is the place of peoples. In this city of Washington, DC, you have more opportunity to influence the world than from any other place. Because if you have ten people here from different countries, you are also affecting from their vibration all the countries that they represent, all of the countries that they have touched, and of course, most prominently, their country of origin.

So you are in the hub of a powerful and unified force which is directed through the continent, through the people, through the union of all of the aspects that you seek to bring together.

The Principle of Cooperation

The first principle that we are operating with is the one called cooperation. You are operating coordinately together so that there are pieces of information that are held by more than one person. Everybody here knows something different from what everybody else in the room knows--but you may not know what it is. So your first exercise might be to say: “What is it that I know, that is important?”

Once you understand the dynamics of cooperation, you no longer have to hold your learnings, but can share them in every moment. So you create layers upon layers of union through the practice of your being. You create these layers because you have abilities, gifts, meanings, focus. You want to do something that he doesn't want to do; he wants to do something that you don't want to do. Fine!

But nowhere on this continent is there an organization or a group that is dedicated to finding out what those abilities and resources are--to make them available so that everyone has something to share, and everyone has what they need, and everything comes together in a way that is synchronistic.

So if you write down your gifts and make them available, then other people will come, and there will be sharings and movements and connections. People will begin to recognize that there is magic, because they find exactly what they need wherever they need it. They have access to information, understanding, experience, knowledge, resource, to practical things that they don't have otherwise. And they stop feeling alone and begin to feel part of a very beautiful network.

No Beliefs Are Necessary

People do not have to believe anything to belong to this network. They only have to have experience that teaches them something, so they have something to share. This is an open-ended exchange of being. There are no religious connotations, no demographic, cultural, racial, or educational considerations. The only thing the person needs is a life force. They have to be alive on the planet, breathing. And they have something special, but the world is full of people who don't think they're special. In this room you have unified with your light, with your spaces of being, so you know that being in the human body is not all there is. But so many people don't know that. They think that this is all there is, and it's a pretty bad experience for them, because they don't know better.

And you cannot teach them through education. You have to teach them through the heart... You have to teach them through creating a vibration that they can relate to, that's going to come to them cross-culturally, across the barriers of separation that are imposed by people on the planet.

All of you have a design that affects other people. You are not individual souls who are only concerned about your own evolution. You have all graduated from that particular grade. You are here for the experience of oneness. Nothing else really matters. And if you keep this model of cooperation in a spiritual framework, it will perpetuate separation. It's no different from the blacks not liking the whites, and the whites not liking the blacks because they're different.

What do you have in common? One thing. Your life force. What you have in common with all species (and it's very necessary for you to communicate with them) is your life force. So train yourself to respond to your life force more than to your external five-sense stimuli. This will bring you into accord with your life and with creation, and with the experiences that need to be established on the planet. You will come to the point where you no longer consider anything, because you have your heart so open that there is nothing to consider.

So it is all right to be wherever you are in the process of that recognition. It doesn't matter where you are or what you think. It does matter what you believe, though, because if you believe something, then you are attending to the details of the external world, which creates separation. So believe nothing.

When you believe something, there is always a judgment attached. Your beliefs have a way of etching themselves into your psyche as truths, when they are really not truths at all. They are just things that have been appropriate for you to do in response to stimulus that you have received on the level of the five senses.

So if you don't believe anything, and you're running the fiber of being, and you don't have any context for anything, then you end up being what you are in the primary, which is what you know in terms of your human experience. And none of the rest of it matters. You begin to live what you know.

You'll find that everything you know has been given to you from your soul as a pathway that is the expression of your essence. So when you go into essence, you are not considering anything, and you're in the fiber of being. Your essence is out there like a neon flag, and you continually live your potential. And there is really nothing else.

When you teach people, when you teach them from potential, they get it because it's nonverbal. You're transmitting the fiber so that what they feel is re-energized, alive; they feel considered. So you are not considering anything, but they feel as if you have taken time to be with them in the space of union. And then they are able to bring forth their gift.

Maybe all someone can do is wash your dishes. If you look at them with your purposeful essence, from the fiber of being, you see that their hands are golden, and their soul is full of light. And they will do a very good job for you and won't break your dishes, and you don't have to do them yourself. Because that's what they do best--and it doesn't matter what they do.

The Hologram in Action

Now, this is the beginning of the hologram in action. It is important for one person, one purpose, one universe, for everything--micro-and macrocosm. We have been talking for many moons about purpose. You have a purpose, and your purpose fits into the big whole; you take your purpose and stick it into the hologram. And your purpose and everybody else's purpose merge together. You are all there, in love and harmony. All of you are there, and you're going to fit the purpose of your soul into the manifestation of your destiny.

But the intermediary step to fulfilling all of that is this organization. Here you are doing things fundamentally--sharing things that you care enough about because they help your life work more easily. And there are ways that you can connect with people that don't believe in this or that, because that doesn't matter. As you come together and share and unify and experience the fiber of being together, you create a hologram that is working on a practical level. It is working with language, and of course, sustained without language. You sustain your hologram without language and live it in language.

As you go forward, you expand your hologram. You have 10 in the beginning; and then you have 20, then 50, and then 500. And you don't have to have meetings of 500 people, although it might be a nice idea. You have your core people who radiate the energy, and they can do it. You can all do it now. You don't even have to get together again if you don't want to. You can just do it together all the time. Every time you are in the fiber you are with everybody anyway. But you do want to have times when you come in and introduce the fiber to other people, when you want to experience merging your edges and feeling union.

Action is born of union. If you don't create union, you won't have any action. The union creates energy, which creates action.

The Practical Parts

You have a data bank of information, and it's available all the time. You will create positions where people want to fill the roles of typing it up, or entering information, or answering the telephone. And what they get in return is whatever they need. And that's where the universal design comes in, because you will attract the people who have what you need in the beginning.

The question is not: How do we start, because it's already started. Your question really is: Will I make the commitment to be in union? to be in the fiber of being? Will I share my experience with other people and think about my uniqueness, write down who I am, open my heart without exception in every situation, so that there is no longer any separation?

Consciousness is not separate from life, and that is what is going to change the dynamics. If you open and do not separate, and unify with the fiber of being, you will join together with those people who come across your path. You don't have to reach out. They'll come right to you. And if you open your eyes, and if you listen with your heart, the people who come across your path will have something to exchange with you--something very important. And if you are open to that exchange, you have just created another person in your network.

And you say to them, very excited, "You know what, we're just starting this group! And we need your skill. We need your gift." How many times in the week does somebody say to you, "I need your gift"? And if they were sincere, coming from a very open heart, vibrating with the fiber of being that binds all life together, having all kinds of angels and realms around them, and said, “ You have a gift to share, and it is very special,” how would you feel?

So this is a very good opportunity to be a light--to shine in a way that is very different from recruiting and from all of the normal kinds of process that you go through to establish something that you want people to belong to. Because you don't have to do anything. People will come, as long as you are comfortable being in the space of cooperation. People will be attracted and will come across your path, and you will get used to seeing their gifts. Say, “I know that you can do something very special,” and they'll look at you. And you say, “I know what you can do, and I know that it is needed over here.” And it begins to happen. It's very subtle.

You will change the dynamics of human conversation, of human interaction. Society will be bonded through potential. The action is the extension of the energy of potential. So it's a quantum leap of experience, because you do not really have to do anything. You don't have to wrack your brain for days to have something happen. All you're doing is placing yourself in a vibration, which we are calling the fiber.

As you place yourself and the group in that vibration, you affect reality consistently. It is the concentricity theory. You are creating concentricity to connect. You don't have to do anything because you know what happens. Everything you need comes to you, individually and collectively.

Expanding the Network

If you share this with 10 people and they share this with 10 others, see what will happen. Not that you get on the horn and convince anyone! Simply say, “I open myself to 10 people; may they cross my path when it is appropriate. May we see the light in each other, and may we share resources, and may we add this momentum and this energy to the union of cooperation, to the model of everybody working in harmony. May we trust the design that we, ourselves are creating--that everything is perfect, and everything we need is right here.” Whoever crosses your path is going to be connected in whatever way they need to be. And you do not have to structure it. You are taking everything out of a practical standpoint in terms of creation and making it come into a framework of holographic design, which means that it doesn’t have one point of initiation. It’s like taking the group and dividing it into a million pieces and then giving a piece to everybody.

You are known as a group that shares. It has perhaps no name, no place, because it’s everywhere. It doesn’t confine itself to anything. You see, because you go from washing dishes to car mufflers to doing surgery. It doesn’t matter what the skill is. It doesn’t matter what it is that’s being exchanged. It might be human labor, human compassion, anything that is needed and that can be shared.

Everything that becomes a task in another organization, everything that you don’t look forward to—don’t do it. Create something so different in your experience that you can’t wait to do it because it’s so exciting, and what you find out is a gift to you in that moment because it’s exactly what you need. That trusting the process to the point where you no longer think “process” and are not considering the normal options.

So there is trusting, receiving, balancing, union, sharing, excitement, joy. And touching becomes an ordinary, everyday occurrence. Touching a life, making a difference, having someone come into the fold. And not worrying. When you stop worrying, you start creating. You see, this is a very monumental, pivotal point in evolution. People are beginning to think about something other than themselves.

It is important that there are pioneers in consciousness that are not interested in profit, not interested in glory, and not interested in publication. They are interested in consciousness because they understand that the only way to heal the world is to raise the consciousness. So place yourself in a position where the fiber is your focus and the light is your focus.

The fiber does not have language, so you can join with the fiber of a hummingbird, or a bee, or a moon, or a beam of sun, or a star, or a drop of rain, or a bird, leaf, or tree. It's not just a nice feeling of bonding, it's, "What is your language about? What do you need?" It is important to establish a continuum of experience that is broad enough to encompass inter-species communication so that there are people who actually understand what the language of BEING is.

Synchronicity

It is intuition to see people crossing your path, but it is more than that because the excitement is that you know if they're crossing your path, there is a reason. If you find out why, you'll be richer. And they'll be richer. Then everything you touch is rich because it is pouring out of you at a rate of speed that is making these simultaneous points of reality, spontaneous coincidence, synchronicity, because you are living the magic.

And the people who are drawn to you are also ready to live the magic. Never question that--regardless of their education, or how many teeth they have, or how tall they are, or what their prejudices are, because it doesn't matter. It doesn't matter.

And that is the point where you stop separating, and you start being. And then your work is clearer. It's faster. The work that you've come to do happens like "that" because you are no longer thinking, "How can I do what I came here to do?" You're doing it. And it doesn't have to be logical. It only has to be the truth of your essence so that everybody you talk to will recognize it and they will trust you. Think about that. They will trust you.

Living from Your Essence

Do you understand why people trust us, The Ones With No Names, and the one speaking? Because we recognize your essence. We recognize your divinity. What would happen if you went around doing the same thing, and share it with 10 people, and they share it with 10 people. It's practical, yes. It's essential, yes. And it's necessary, yes.

It takes your ability to see something that is not there, to dream of something that has not been seen, to know in your heart that why you are here has more to do with what you are than with what you do. So call forth your essence and live it, and everybody who passes your path is destined to influence your reality and you theirs. When you do that consciously, you stop having "accidents" because when you cross each other's path, you acknowledge.

This is what the "new age" is that your people talk about--the coming together of the ages. Everybody is rich, happy, loving, coming together. Everybody is happening together. That means that you can have power the same time I have power. A man and woman can each have power and still be married. Children can have power at the same time that parents have power, so that they can all live in harmony. And it changes everything. And it's simple. It's fundamental, and it doesn't cost anything! Your people need you. They need you to be accessible to them. Accessible to them.

You will need to be accessible to the people, to animals, to the elements, to the essences, to everything. Make yourself available. A doorway will open up in your psyche. All of the gifts that have been crammed in there and not used since you were two years old--they'll all fall out, and you'll start to recognize who you are and what you have to give. Nine times out of ten, what you think you have to give is not what you have to give. You have to give something more fundamental than you're thinking.

So as you develop the experience of giving, of opening, you will receive in exact increment to what you are giving. You will get exactly what you give--exactly. It will be balanced infinitely. So you give over here; you will receive over there, in balance. You will not be drained. You will be affirmed. Because you are available for the work of the universe, you will receive what you need.

You will receive in the amount that you have allowed yourself to be opened. And if you don't think it's enough, then you're not opening enough, because it's always in exact balance. When you live in the fiber, the wave of creation, everything you need will come to you. If someone needs something, and you're the right person to give it to them on whatever level it is, whether it be advice or a dime or a cigarette, or whatever it is, they'll ask you for it. You will know as they speak to you exactly what they are really asking you for, and you can give it to them--a piece of information, a little bit of time, an apple, whatever it is. It works 100 percent.

And you will receive many gifts. Sometimes it will be a smile of a child, or it might be a grimy apple that you would like to wipe off, but that you take a bite of anyway in gratitude that someone gave you something that they don't have very much of--you know, these rare human experiences. And people will come and say, “You know, what I am aware of is that there is this diffuse group of people who are all working in harmony with very little strife, very little communication, and everybody seems to know who to call for what, and where to go for what, and everything is working, and it’s strengthening. And what’s interesting is, there’s no money being exchanged. And there’s nobody really in charge. And the people are making it work.” That’s the way the new society is going to be based.

There has not been a society that has lived this way throughout its races, throughout its species. There are clusters of people who have lived in cooperation because they had to. But when you add the element of free choice, and you throw away all the other dynamics, and you start living in harmony, it becomes magic. Because people are going to know that there’s a God out there--a Source out there that cares about them because they are getting taken care of by human beings.

So know that your hologram is very specific for you. If you need a banana, your hologram has a banana in it. It has a sunset in it, if you need a sunset. Your hologram is complete, so when you allow yourself to live it fully, and open up to receive and experience from the fiber, whatever you need will be right in front of you. And that straightens out your health, your love, and it straightens out your awareness and your life. So you don’t have questions any more because you don’t have any considerations. You are living your purpose. That’s what this is about and why it’s so important.

So weave, weave a pattern. If you bake a loaf of bread and give it away, the person will feel in you God, Jesus, Buddha, Mother Theresa--whoever they idealize in their own frame of thinking, perception, and experience. And you won’t care what they think. Then they will stop feeling that maybe idealizing is real. And when you don't care what they look like, and you just feel their essence, they will give you their essence. If a teacher knows that a child has a special gift and tells the child, the child will give the teacher the special gift. It is the intention to find potential that actualizes potential.

And it's all you have. All you have is your potential. And you understand what you would be like without it--how dead you would feel. That's what you are looking at when you are looking at the killing. You are looking at the deadness of the people who do not have a knowing of their potential. They act dead because they don't believe they have it, and that's their reality. And that becomes truth for them.

So you are missionaries. You can actualize potential by living in the fiber of being, by weaving the thread of oneness. If you go into a situation with someone that you do not know and cannot relate to either through language or experience or race, whatever the dynamics might be, and you are in the fiber, they will feel and see the sunset in your body. And they will say, "Can I come and sit in your garden? I feel good when I am with you." And the thing that is important is this--when you stop separating from anyone or anything, there is no separation. What you experience is created from what you believe.

So don't believe in anything. Just be in the fiber of being, because there is nothing that separates you from anything. Nothing. You are a butterfly, a cloud, a rock. You are freedom.

When you see someone, of course, you do not judge. You do not separate. You do not categorize. You open yourself, and you have to practice this, because you weren't taught to do this. Maybe you will stand with them in the supermarket and talk about tomatoes. "Is this one ripe? It looks a little green. It doesn't smell very good. What do you think about this one?" You give them the fiber wherever you are. “What day do you shop? I shop on Wednesday. Maybe I’ll see you next week.” And you hand them a lovely tomato. And in the tomato you place the fiber. And they share the fiber with their family, and they all have the fiber. And it doesn’t matter what you think happened or what they do with it, because that’s in DIVINE ORDER.

Let go and let God. Do you understand? It’s like giving up your power to be in the power of being. It’s knowing that you don’t know enough to analyze anything. And on some level, yes, that’s trust. The interesting thing is, it wasn’t your tomato. The tomato was there and you gave it, but you didn’t give anything that was of yourself. And yet you gave everything from yourself.

The tomato was there as a way to bring together this union. You see, you use the resources that are available. So everything belongs to everybody. And once you believe that-- everything belongs to everybody--you don’t have to worry about it any more. Everything gets taken care of. The fundamental beingness is important, and then all the pieces fall together. Whatever you need, manifests. And then, you give thanks. And everything that you are, and all that you know, and everything that comes from your record, from your Akashic record, is available to you. It comes from you as an extension of the fiber--your role, your part.

Now, this model of cooperation is a model for the future. And of course, you start it now. Speak to the people that you really care about, the ones you want to have with you. If you are having a meeting of this group that shares and you want someone to come, you call them up and you do not say, “I want you to come to the meeting tonight. We’re going to have a meeting at 8 p.m. Will you come?” How many demands do you have on your time? How many people are asking for others’ time? You call them up and you say, “I really want you to be there. This fiber thing, it’s really important, and I care that you’re there with me because when you're there with me, it's easier for me. Because your specialness is helping me feel my specialness." Or whatever is true for you. Be real with each other.

And then people come, and it's such a strong experience that whether it's two months or two weeks before you do it again, it sustains you because it magnifies the energy of concentricity. Micro into macro. And you don't talk about your lives. You feel your space together.

And you say to someone afterward, "I need to just say this to you; it won't go away. There's somebody's name I need to give you." And you do it, and then you allow. And they come back to you, and they may say, "That changed my life. I needed that, and I couldn't say it to anybody. I didn't even know what to ask for, and that person was the one who was the key for me."

What you are doing is creating a very beautiful concentric crystal that accelerates and amplifies the energy of manifestation. Remember that you do the work of the universe through the vehicles of your expression and your being, and we are grateful to you that it is so.

How to Run the Fiber in a Group of People

Begin by sitting or standing in a group and holding hands. Remember that running the fiber is not a meditation or focused exercise as much as it is becoming the fiber that flows through all life and brings it together, in sacredness. To become part of the oneness of all dimensions, breathe together, flowing the breathe between and among you for a minute or so. Sense the flowing and movement of your consciousness as it merges and mingles together.

Begin imagining that you are at your favorite place for watching sunrises or sunsets. If you have a memory of a particular place, a particular sunrise, return there in your mind. Feel the sun's rays rising or falling above the horizon and imagine that you are at one with these rays. This is the important piece, because as you visualize and experience the rays moving, your consciousness will move with the rays and begin to touch the whole planet, filling with the fiber of being.

As you continue to hold the space with the group, you may feel a deep, warm, and tender awareness forming in your body, usually in the areas of the sacred space, the soul, and the heart. You may feel your body relaxing and moving with the sun's rays through the universe. To be in this space together for about ten minutes allows for the osmotic blending and melding of your knowledge and information to touch others, and for the experience of the fluid to fill the cells and tissues of your body bringing a sense of balance and peace.

When it feels comfortable, someone can suggest using your awareness to come back into the room and you can gently bring your consciousness into your body again. When you feel ready, share whatever you are moved to communicate, organically and spontaneously, without thought. You have an opportunity to flow in union with the other people in the group, with the Earth, the sun, the universe, and spirit. Sharing organically is a process of allowance and participation, which brings you the experience of oneness with the point in the universe where oneness originates.

Have fun!
